Meet Sincere (2001), a basketball athlete with a penchant for the culinary arts. Thanks to this dynamic and friendly young man, it was effortless to set up the shoot for this Wednesday's Child broadcast. True to his namesake, he was most "sincere" about who he is; what his aspirations are; and what he'd like in an adoptive family.

With basketball as his main career goal and a chef secondary, he absolutely enjoyed a visit to the college campus and meeting with the athletes. For an afternoon, Sincere was the VIP guest of Coach, Jim Saia, and an honorary member of the Cal State LA Men's Basketball Team – The Golden Eagles.

To say that Sincere is a fan of basketball would be an understatement. Besides playing on a team, this kid is a walking basketball encyclopedia and can tell you the stats on just about any player out there. While he enjoys watching cartoons for down time, his favorite shows are sports talk shows. In preparation to become a chef, Sincere is taking cooking classes and his cuisine of choice is Mexican.

An athlete and a scholar, Sincere's favorite subjects are Chemistry and English. His wish for a permanent family is simple and clear: a "loving and caring family that will support me and not give up on me...a family that is active and likes basketball" would be a plus.

Sincere is an upbeat kid that's easy to be around with and it was evidenced on how well he has connected with the basketball team on his dream day. We're hoping for that winning shot of an adoptive family for him to call his own. Tune in to Wednesday's Child to learn more about Sincere and about adoption, and then give us a call at 1-866-921-ADOPT (2367).
